

Karsten Gerloff

Karsten Gerloff is the President of the Free Software Foundation Europe, a leading non-profit organization dedicated to the advancement of and education on Free Software. With a long-term vision, he focuses on policy and strategic aspects of Free Software, working at the forefront of a broad push for modernization in national and international systems and practices of the management of copyright and patents. With a background in cultural sciences, Karsten has worked as a researcher in the Collaborative Creativity Group at the United Nations University's MERIT institute (UNU-MERIT) in Maastricht, The Netherlands. There, he studied the use of Free Software as a tool for social and economic development. He has published a number of case studies on the use of Free Software in the European public sector.