Abstract

Justice is one of the Assyrian's Kings Titles during the Sargon II dynasty 721-612 BCE. They used to say that they loved justice. Despite of the existing of courts and judges, High rank officials and astrologer prefer to complain to the king directly using their corresponding to the king to state their problem sometime between lines or at the end of the report. Most of the cases are concern with either estate or other affairs.

This paper focused on those cases and unfortunately in most cases we do not know the kings orders exceptions in some cases when the officials were not satisfied with judge verdict therefore he complain again and mentioned the king order as an indirect speech in the same letter.
